Mayor and Council Questions	Response
COVID-19 Federal Stimulus Update
Were any programs for formerly incarcerated included in CARES act workforce investments? (Johnson)	These were capacity building grants, so they went towards a variety of uses that could have included direct program funding. While none of these organizations would exclude assisting the formerly incarcerated population, below are the ones who more directly serve that population through their services and programs: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• National Center on Institutions and Alternatives (NCIA)</li> <li>• Training to Work and Industry Niche</li> <li>• Goodwill Industries of the Southern Piedmont</li> <li>• YMCA</li> <li>• Urban League</li> <li>• City Startup Labs</li> <li>• The ROC</li> <li>• Center for Community Transitions</li> <li>• Community Culinary School of Charlotte</li> <li>• Global Vocational Training Center</li> <li>• Advocations</li> </ul> For these organizations that received funds, the ones with a focused mission to specifically help the formerly incarcerated population are the Center for Community Transitions, NCIA, and City Startup Labs through the Re-Entry Entrepreneurship Program.
